 JOIN THE CELEBRATION! OCTOBER 1-16, 2016
AMERICAN CRAFT WEEK™

artsfestivalreading.org

I am so pleased to welcome you to the 5th annual arts festival READING! You are experiencing an event unlike almost any other in the country. arts festival READING is the culmination of GoggleWorks' mission to nurture the arts, foster creativity, promote education, and enrich the community. As you explore our facilities, you will discover the finest craft artists and vendors, experience demonstrations of virtuosic technique, explore work made in our juried artist studios on the 2nd and 3rd floors, taste new flavors from food vendors, sing along with musical artists, register for upcoming classes and workshops at GoggleWorks, and connect with other attendees who are excited by the arts.

There are many people to thank. First of all, I must offer my gratitude to the event coordinators and founders, Penny Golden and Ginny Hand. They lead a phenomenal group of committee leaders and volunteers who help plan and produce this event. They pay special attention to making your time at GoggleWorks a unique and unforgettable experience, one which helps you connect with art in a way that inspires your creativity and provokes your imagination. I also must thank our stalwart staff, who are small in number, but so great in passion and output. Lastly, I thank our Board of Directors, led by Chair Paul Cohn, who help lead our nonprofit with remarkable wisdom and volunteerism.

This is my first arts festival READING and I can't quantify how excited I am to share in this experience with you. I hope to go home with some art work that I will cherish for my whole life; to encounter influential artists and craftspeople; and to meet new friends that unite around the goal to engage the community in the arts. While I have only been serving at GoggleWorks since March, I have been so excited by opportunities to develop our community and expand cultural experiences. Thank you for your support by joining in this phenomenal annual event!

About GoggleWorks

GoggleWorks Center for the Arts is a place to develop skills, ask questions, experiment freely, and investigate the human spirit. Here we create dialogue between the established and the experimental, the contemporary and the traditional. Through exceptional arts education and engaging community programming, we inspire people to expand the boundaries of art making, personal growth, and appreciation for material culture.

Located in the former Willson Goggle Factory building, GoggleWorks Center for the Arts is the largest arts center of its kind in the country. The 145,000 square foot complex features six teaching studios in ceramics, hot and warm glass, metalsmithing, photography, and woodworking; 35 juried artist studios; and dozens of dance, music, arts, and other creative businesses and cultural organizations. GoggleWorks also includes several exhibition galleries, a 130-seat film theatre, café, and gift store featuring handcrafted works by over 200 artists working within our walls and beyond. Admission (excluding special events) and parking are always free.
